

HDU

or High-Density Urethane, is a lightweight, cost-efficient sign-making material that has many uses. It has excellent workability with its grain-free finish and broad range of densities. It can be routed into to create beautiful, three-dimensional signage. HDU signs are long-lasting and can replicate the look of wood signs, which have a tendency to rot and fade over the years. It is resistant to cracking, splintering, pest infestation, and other issues that are typically associated with wood signs, making this material and style the premium choice in sign making.

On this page you can find a few examples of HDU signage we have created for our clients over the years. The possibilities are endless with this material, so please don't let the items on this page limit your creativity!

We are always excited to create your vision, so feel free to send us any photo references of other signs, color schemes, sketches or anything else that you would like to see come to life.
